Canada Temporary Resident Visa

Lively cities, welcoming environs and magnificent nature's bounty, together make Canada one of the most preferred travel destinations of the world, and here at LOGICALPLATEAU as well. The maple leaf nation is also known for its business friendly atmosphere and serves as a lucrative place for entrepreneurs and investors all over the globe. Travellers who visit Canada to explore business opportunities or visit the nation as a tourist will need a valid entry pass such as travel visa or an Electronic Travel Authorization (eTA).

Basic Requirements:-

In order to obtain a travel visa to Canada, individuals must meet some basic requirements. These include:-

- having genuine travel documents, such as a passport.
- must be medically fit
- must not have any immigration or criminal related conviction
- should be able to convince the immigration officials about their ties back home which shall persuade you to return to their native nation.
- should be able to assure the immigration official that they shall leave the Canadian nation at the end of their visit, and
- they have enough funds to support their stay in Canada and shall not seek any financial aid from the Canadian public funds.

Electronic Travel Authorization (eTA)

In effect from March 15, 2016, individuals with passports from eTA-required countries who come to the Canadian nation by air will need a valid eTA document.

An eTA is an authorization which is electronically linked to a traveller's passport and stands valid for a period of five years or until the passport expires, whichever happens first.

Applying for an eTA is simple and affordable online procedure wherein the applicants receive their authorization within few minutes after submitting their application online.

Individual who need an eTA must obtain one at least 48 hours prior to their intended date of travel to Canada to avoid any complications. Also, individuals must travel with a valid passport used for obtaining an eTA.

Visitor visa

Individuals belonging to the visa-required countries and territories must apply for a visitor visa (also known as a temporary resident visa) to travel to Canada. A visitor visa is an official document attached to a passport that allows individuals to travel to Canada.

There are two kinds of Canadian visitor visas that can be availed by individuals to travel to Canada – single entry visa and multiple entry visa.

A Canadian multiple entry visa allows visitors to come and leave Canada without having to re-apply. However, each entry must not exceed six months. On the other hand, a Canadian single entry visa, as the name says, is valid only for one visit to Canada. Once you leave the geographical boundaries of Canada, except if travelling to United States, Miquelon and St. Pierre, individuals will have to apply again to travel to Canada. Both travel visa types are valid for a fixed period of time and cannot be used after they have expired.

Travel documents

When travelling to the Canadian nation, individuals must carry proper identification and travel documents as there may be circumstances wherein they may be asked to furnish travel documents for verification by the Immigration officials at the Canadian airport.

The following are considered non-reliable travel documents. Individuals are not allowed to enter Canada if they are carrying:-

- a passport issued by Somalia,
- a passport that cannot be read by verification machines, issued by the Czech Republic,
- a temporary passport issued by the Republic of South Africa,
- a provisional passport issued by the Venezuelan nation.

- have, since becoming a permanent resident, been physically present in Canada for at least 183 days during any four (4) calendar years that are fully or partially within the six (6) years immediately before you apply,
- have met any applicable requirement under the Income Tax Act to file income taxes for any four (4) taxation years that are fully or partially within the six (6) years immediately before you apply,
- intend to reside in Canada, to work outside Canada in or with, or to accompany certain family members employed in or with the Canadian Armed Forces, the federal public administration or the public service of a province outside Canada;
- be able to communicate (speak and understand) in English or French (if you are 65 years of age or older, this does not apply), and
- be able to demonstrate, in English or French, knowledge about Canada and the responsibilities and privileges of citizenship (if you are 65 years of age or older, this does not apply).

Citizenship through Adoption

Citizenship through Adoption program allows applicant who have been adopted by Canadian parents to obtain Canadian citizenship. The applicant should have at least one Canadian parent to get citizenship, receive a Canadian passport, and enjoy the benefits for an eligible Canadian citizen. The applicant, who is an adopted child of Canadian parents, has to be adopted outside Canada. Once approved, the applicant can enjoy the rights and freedoms as equal to a Canadian resident. This includes aboriginal people's rights, equality rights, legal rights, mobility rights, freedom of thought, religion, and speech as well as the right to peaceful assembly.

Temporary Work Visa For Canada

Canada, one of the widely growing economies, offers a host of opportunities to people all around the world. Each year, hundreds and thousands of individuals are hired on temporary basis by the Canadian organizations for a wide range of skills to fill in job positions which cannot be fulfilled by the existing workforce of the nation. Such workers must obtain a temporary work visa.

This liberal program, instituted by Citizenship and Immigration Canada allows eligible foreign workers to work in Canada for a specific period of time.

However, in order to work in the Canadian country as a temporary worker, individuals must be aware of the following essential information:-

- You employer may be required to obtain a Labour Market Impact Assessment (LMIA) to recruit you. LMIA is a document from Employment and Social Development Canada / Service Canada that allows your employer to hire a foreign worker.
- Your recruiter may have to pay a recruiter compliance fee and submit an "offer of employment" form to the Citizenship and Immigration Canada (CIC) via the Employer Portal. (In case you are exempted from the LIMA process, your employer must follow this step before you can apply for a permit).
- There is no need to submit any documents from a Canadian employer in case you are applying for an open work permit visa. Bear in mind, that if you are exempted from the LMIA process and receive an approval for an open work permit, you will have the liberty of working an employer of Canada who is not a part of the list of ineligible employers.
- You must meet the admissible requirements to enter Canada, stay in the country and obtain a work permit.
- A temporary worker visa does not allow you to permanently reside in Canada. In order to do so, you must prove your qualifications under an immigration category as a permanent resident.
- Your dependent children, spouse or common-law partner are eligible to accompany you to Canada, and, if they wish, they can apply for a job or study visa.

To apply for a temporary work visa for Canada, individuals must fulfill the basic eligibility criteria:-

- Convince the immigration officer that you shall leave the geographical boundaries of Canada at the end of your temporary work visa,
- Demonstrate your ability to financially support your and your accompanying family members during your stay in Canada and the return journey to your home, Obey the laws of Canada,
- Furnish a police clearance certificate stating that you have no records of criminal activities,
- Prove that you are and shall not be a danger to Canada's security,
- Furnish proofs that you are in good health by submitting medical reports

- Prove that you shall not serve an employer who nones on the list of ineligible employers,
- Prove that you do not have any plans to serve an employer who, on a regular basis, provides striptease, escort services, erotic dance or erotic massages,
- Demonstrate that you have not worked in Canada for one or more periods which total up to four years after April 1, 2011 (some exceptions apply), and
- Provide the immigration office with any other documents that shall prove your worth to the country and the employer hiring you.
